

Editorial

This year witnesses the recovery of the community of JNM@S from Covid-19 and a return of our operation back to normal. On the bright side, 2022 is marked by the winning of the Field's medal, for the second time ever by a woman mathematician, Maryna Vrazovska, with her homeland Ukraine mired in war. On the dark side, however, the ongoing Russian-Ukrainian fierce war, which caused in March 2022 a tragic killing in Kiev of another bright young mathematician, Yulia Zdanovska, cannot pass unnoticed. It is a serious threat to Eastern Ukraine with a Chernobylsk-like nuclear pollution disaster. Incidentally, the war arena happens to have been a homeland for the famous Kharkiv Mathematical Society and for a set of great names in mathematics & stochastics that includes : Bunyakovsky, Lyapunov, Bernstein, Urysohn, Krein, Krylov, Besicovitch, Arnold, Mitropolskiy, Naimark, Gelfand, Fomenko, Korolyuk, Skorokhod, Girko and several others. In the shade of all these remarkable giants, we can only hope that all leaders of the world and the United Nations could be able to firmly and promptly interfere to stop this apathetic irresponsible war, that threatens the entire human race.

Nassar H. S. Haidar
Managing Editor
JNM@S
E-mail: nhaidar@suffolk.edu